ABSTRACT

Methods are disclosed that enable the construction of families of sequences comprising

5   sequence repeats connected as direct fusions or with linkers. Families are constructed from a series of interchangeable cassettes and consist of related sequences that can be easily and efficiently polymerized to form multimers and polymers ranging from 1 to N, where N is theoretically any integer greater than one.